Do you believe in any superstitions?

Do you think that they have become habits over time?

Do you have any lucky objects, for example lucky socks or a lucky pen which you always use for exams?

Do you think that superstitions are beneficial for confidence?

A random superstition

Putting your clothes on inside out in Hungary is thought by some to be a sign of good luck, but only if you leave the clothing inside out until the time you'd normally undress for bed. It's also a sign of bad luck to keep a cactus in your house. If any of you reading this have a cactus in your house, it may be worth turning your top inside out to cancel out your bad luck.

Random superstition

In Croatia it is bad luck to cut anything or use scissors on a Sunday. For instance cutting the grass or cutting your nails

In Italy...

The number 13 is lucky unless you are the thirteenth person to sit at a dinner table.
